Face Chinese

Shanghai—(7)—Ranks of Japanese Bluejackets moved into battle position in Shanghai to face an unstemmed torrent of Chinese regulars tonight and the garrisons of the United States and three other nations mobilized "for the worst."

A "peace" conference intended to ease the crisis in the panic-stricken city ended in abject failure.

Backed by 21 warships at Shanghai's wharves, Japanese naval forces, estimated to number between 5,000 and 8,000, moved into the same positions they occupied during 1932's Chinese-Japanese hostilities.

They deployed along the fringe of the Japanese portion of the international settlement and roads extending northward.

Chinese central government troops streaming into the city answered to no authority but the army. Civilian authorities would not try to stop them.

Striation Only Needs Spark
Each force indicated it was not planning to attack. But the situation needed only a spark to touch off an explosion.

United States marines, 1,050 strong, mobilized along with Russian, and British garrisons. The Americans were charged with the protection of nearly 4,000 United States citizens in Shanghai, and its environs, some of whom were cut off by the Chinese advance.

British forces numbered 950; and French, 600. A Russian volunteer company was summoned to duty.

The American marines took up patrol duty along the northern border of the international settlement.

At the "peace" conferences Chinese refused to withdraw the troops pouring into the city. Japanes replied:

"There is nothing left, then, but to take up defensive positions."

The atmosphere in this jittery city of more than 3,000,000 souls was the same as that which preceded the Chinese-Japanese hostilities here in 1932. Americans fled to their international refuge.

But up to dusk not a shot was heard.

Northern portions of Shanghai about the Chapei and Kiangwan areas were considered doomed to be battlegrounds if the present Shanghai power keg explodes.

Patrols March By

The fringe of the expected trouble zone was deserted. Chinese patrols stamped past vacant houses and shacks.

Closer to the international settlement, streets and alleys were jammed with Chinese fleeing from the prospective battlegrounds.

The pathetic procession numbered tens of thousands. Refugees scrambled for space along with cattle, pigs and chickens.

Twenty-eight foreign men-of-war were tied up along Shanghai's riverfront. Twenty-one of them were Japanese—fight light cruisers, nine destroyers, and seven gunboats.

Two British, three French, and two United States vessels were the "neutral" contingent. The American ships were a navy tanker and a small, obsolete gunboat.

United States Asiatic fleet units remained north, near Etsinqua and Chefoo, off the coast of Shantung province.

Chinese living at the confluence of the Wocean and Whangpoo rivers rushed to Shanghai by boat. The roads were closed by long lines of Chinese troops who felled trees and threw in barricades at frequent intervals.

River Junction

The river junction was the scene of the terrific fighting in 1932, with Japanese ships attacking the Chinese Wocean fort.

Japanese labored into the night to make ready an airfield on Shanghai's eastern border. Swarms of Chinese coolies strained and groaned under Japanese direction.

As yet, no Japanese warplanes had arrived. At dusk, however, reports were that these planes were

Investigation of Democratic Party Book Sales Asked

Rep. Snell Charges Violation of Corrupt Practices Act

BULLETIN

Washington—(7)—The house rules committee voted today against recommending a congressional investigation of the Democratic national committee's sale of $250 copies of its year-book autographed by President Roosevelt.

Washington—(7)—Rep. Snell of New York, the house Republican leader, told the house rules committee today that sales of books on the Democratic national convention to corporations was "disgraceful and demoralizing political racketeering." He said $18,000,000 in fines was collectible under federal law for the sales.

Washington—(7)—Rep. Snell of New York, the house Republican leader, told the house rules committee today that sales of books on the Democratic national convention to corporations was "disgraceful and demoralizing political racketeering." He said $18,000,000 in fines was collectible under federal law for the sales.

Carrying a bundle of 21 exhibits which he filed with the committee, Snell asked committee approval of his resolution for an investigation of the sales.

Before the hearing began, Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, ranking Republican committee member, told reporters with a smile the resolution would be defeated 10 to 4.

There are 10 Democrats and four Republicans on the committee.

Snell charged copies, autographed by the president, had been sold illegally to more than 900 corporations for $250 each.

"Evidence from many quarters," he said, "indicates threats, intimidation and coercion by the regular routine sales methods employed by agents of the Democratic national committee in soliciting individuals and corporations having business before the several departments of the federal government."

"In many cases, these threats amount to bold demands closely approaching, if not actually constituting political tribute for the privilege of continuing cordial business relations with the government of the United States."

Snell said records in the house clerk's office showed that more than $1,000,000 had been obtained by the Democratic committee by "unlawful devices" but that so far as the public record disclosed the attorney general had undertaken no prosecutions.

Recalling a White House statement that the president did not realize his signature was to be used to promote sales of the book, Snell asserted that public opinion "emphatically rejects this specious attempt."

According to Jones, Hutchinson, taken into custody here late yesterday on a vagrancy charge, insisted he, and a companion visited Dr. W. W. Mattson, father of the kidnapped boy, at his Tacoma office last December to obtain narcotics. A few days later, Hutchinson told Jones, they abducted the boy, took him to Everett, Wash., and tried to collect ransom. Failing, Hutchinson said, the other man stabbed the boy, threw dirt and leaves over his body, and left him.

Federal investigators at Seattle were skeptical of the story, pointing out that when the Mattson boy's body was found there were neither leaves nor dirt on it.

Dr. Mattson added to the skepticism by asserting he did not recall any pair of men asking him for narcotics during December. He said he believed the story "another publicity attempt."

At Alliance, Police Chief C. A. Laing said Hutchinson was "peculiar," and that he had been arrested in several places on charges of vagrancy and intoxication. He added Hutchinson had previously told authorities he was wanted by Alliance police for crimes with which he was not charged.

Snell suggested that the committee ask the postmaster general whether such calls actually originated in his office or whether he had authorized the use of his name and position.

6 Persons Nabbed In Land Swindle

Eau Claire, Mich., Family Is Relieved of $105,000 in Shady Deal

Lansing, Mich.—(7)—The arrest of six persons in connection with a $105,000 land swindle from an Eau Claire family was revealed today by state police.

Those arrested are George M. Reynold, 45, Bert Spencer, 51, and Mary Giles, 30, all of Saginaw; William Carroll, 55, and Byron W. Voorhees, 50, both of Bay City; and J. Morehouse, 51, Birmingham.

Police said the alleged swindle began several years ago when Voorhees and Morehouse sold the families 60 lots in Etoe, near Detroit, for prices ranging as high as $2,000. The average assessment on the lots is $150, police said.

In 1932, the officers said, the Saginaw group, working in conjunction with Voorhees and Morehouse, approached the Wolf families, and told them a factory was seeking property in Saginaw and advised the Wolfs to invest in the land.

The Wolfs paid as high as $6,000 for eight lots assessed at $40 each, the officers said.

Later the families bought more lots under the argument that the "factory" sought additional sites, the police said. According to police, Carroll and Spencer then approached the Wolf families, flashed checks for $100,000 and represented themselves as agents for the "factory." They told the Wolfs they did not have enough property secured by deeds and induced them to purchase more land, the arrestors said.

An official announcement issued later at Baghdad, said the soldier fired many bullets into the minister and that Col. Jawad was killed when he tried to save his chieftain's life.

The assassin was seized and the authorities were trying to find out why he did it.

From 7:30 to 9:30 there will be a Freshman reception at the president's house.

Conferences with program advisers are scheduled from 8 to 10 o'clock Saturday and Dr. J. S. Mills, dean of the college, will address the body on "Rules and Regulations of the College" at 10 o'clock in the chapel. Conferences on fraternities and sororities will follow with the men meeting in the chapel and the women in the Little theater.

Initial Cost of Marriage Increases Under New Law

The old claim about marriages that "it isn't the initial cost, but the upkeep that is so high" apparently doesn't hold true any more. Beneficiaries now say that the initial cost has also risen to be on par with the upkeep.

And there is some truth: in the remark as a result of the new state law requiring both male and female applicants for a marriage license to submit to a blood test for disease. Prior to July 31 male applicants were required to submit to an examination by a physician but the cost was nominal. With two blood tests necessary under the present

No Set Price

Although no set price for taking a blood specimen has been set by local physicians, it is understood that a charge of $2 generally is being made with a total fee of $3 for the two required tests for the male applicant.

The new law evidently discouraged applicants in this county for only a few days. The number of marriage applications the first week after the law went into effect dropped off, but more were reported so far this week at the office of John E. Hantschel, Outagamie county clerk.

Under the law, the physician may send a blood sample to the Wisconsin Psychiatric Institute at Madison, where the test is made free of charge. In the case of those who seek an immediate report, however, the test may be made at St. Elizabeth hospital, and of course there again is an extra charge.

Progress Creates New Problem for Scientists

Machine extraction of tomato seeds is an example of the way in which progress often creates new problems, a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture received by R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent, states.

Shortly after seedsmen began extracting the seed by machinery instead of by the slower and older method of fermenting the pulp, bacterial canker of tomatoes became increasingly serious. Dr. H. L. Blood, of the United States Department of Agriculture, decided that something in the fermentation process killed the cancer organism. He found the fermented pulp contained acetic and lactic acids, and then that solutions of these acids controls the cancer organism on even machine-extracted seed.

German-American Groups to Finance Schurz Memorial

Statue to Adorn Entrance Of Capitol Facing University

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau — Madison—Members of the Federation of German-American societies of Wisconsin are busily gathering funds for a statue in memory of Carl Schurz, patron saint of thousands of German Americans, and the most illustrious German ever to figure in Wisconsin history, a statue which will be placed at the entrance of the state capital here.

The state has already accepted the offer of the societies to provide a heroic, full-figure statue of Schurz, which will adorn the capitol entrance facing the University of Wisconsin, of which he was once a regent. A committee composed of legislators and private citizens will make arrangements for the erection and dedication of the statue, which will perpetuate the memory of the man who has been honored many times by cities, private citizens and associations, but never by the state government to which he contributed so much.

Schurz may justly be called one of the state's most famous citizens.

Soldier, statesman, editor, a leader of liberal thought in his day, his accomplishments are equal to those of any man to whom Wisconsin has a claim.

Versatile, Scholarly

Versatile and this scholarly German immigrant were synonymous. At home in Prussia he was a brilliant leader at his university, a romantic, poetic fellow, eventually forced to leave his homeland because of political escapades in the 1848 revolution. In America, after wandering for some years, he settled in Watertown in 1856, just about the time that Wisconsin was receiving the thousands of thrifty, industrious Germans who gave the new commonwealth a cast which even today makes it known throughout the world as a German state.

Lawrence Sees Possible Third Term Movement

"Draft" Idea Still Vivid in Memory of Political Observers

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — Just 10 years ago this month of August a man who could have been president of the United States for 3 successive times startled the nation with a terse declation that he did not choose to run for reelection to a third term.

Calvin Coolidge had served from Aug. 3, 1923, when he first stepped into the presidency from the vice presidency on the death of Warren Harding, and his announcement was made exactly four years to the day after taking the oath of office, namely on the day he began what rightfully might have been his second 4-year term.

But Mr. Coolidge counted as a term the period between Aug. 3, 1923, and March 4, 1925, when he was inaugurated after his successful campaign of 1924. He construed the period between March 4, 1925, and March 4, 1929, as his second term. Anything beyond that would, in his judgment, violate the anti-third term tradition.

Calvin Coolidge had deep-seated beliefs about constitutional precedents, written and unwritten. But, as a matter of fact, he had a better case for a third term than anybody else, for had he accepted reelection in 1928 and served the four years from March 4, 1929, to March 4, 1933, he would have been president only about nine and a half years in all, instead of twelve, which is the usual concept of three terms. He had been elected only once when he declined a third term.

Beyond his famous statement, "I do not choose to run for president in 1928," nobody ever really knew just what were his reasons until he published them in a magazine article long after he left the presidency. It was generally agreed among politicians that he could easily have been elected in 1928, for that was the year of Hoover's overwhelming victory over Al Smith.

Since the days of George Washington, however, there has been no more conspicuous example of renunciation of ambition than that given by Calvin Coolidge. At the time he left office, the country was on a wave of what was regarded at the time as enduring prosperity.

World-wide Depression

Actually, world conditions were far from stable, and in 1929 the bottom dropped out of the world economy due to the artificial and excessive use of borrowing power after the European war—the prime of the pump theory applied internationally. A depression of devastating proportions swept the globe.

For purely political reasons, Mr. Roosevelt has chosen all along to argue that the depression was purely American and that American mistakes brought it about, but most economists abroad as well as here have united in contending that conditions which brought on the depression were world-wide. They still think America's future economic welfare is today inextricably interwoven in the future of the rest of the world.

So far as politics is concerned, the Republicans have allowed themselves to be maneuvered into more or less of an acceptance of the Roosevelt premise and they have failed to emphasize that, irrespective of what caused the breakdown in 1929 throughout the world, the economic condition of the United States itself in the post-war period was, on the whole, eminently satisfactory.

The Roosevelt administration still points to the banner Coolidge year of 1926 as a standard of measurement of what constitutes normalcy. Prices and wages are not yet as good as they were in 1926, though in some lines they are better. The difficulties of comparison are somewhat intensified, because in 1926 a dollar was worth 100 cents, whereas today it is about 60 cents in terms of gold content. The average man is still inclined to think this devaluation is academic and that a dollar still buys a dollar's worth of goods.

It may take a generation before the full effects of the devaluation of the dollar are thoroughly realized and understood by the people. Persons of fixed incomes are already feeling the pinch due to the fact that prices are going up faster than their incomes. Economics and efficiency methods are tending to hold some prices down and this in a way relieves the strain on the workingman's pocketbook; but the probabilities are that, beginning with next fall, some items in the family budget will rise uncomfortably. The coming advance in automobile prices may psychologically induce other price increases due to higher labor costs and higher taxes. Incidentally, the cost of living probably will be influenced as much by the necessity for absorbing the rapid growth in the tax bill of federal, state and city government as by any other factor, not excluding labor. The total debt of the nation for all governmental institutions has already passed $56,000,000,000, and the interest payments are rising.

Feel Increased Costs

Even government is beginning to feel these increased costs in the prices of the articles bought. Just the other day, an estimate for white paper needed for the second six months of the year, with identically the same quantity to be ordered as in the same period last year, was referred to a senate committee here to mean a $600,000 increase for Uncle Sam.

Maybe these issues will become concrete when 1940 comes around, and then Mr. Roosevelt's reported ambition to succeed himself for a third term may be tempered by popular discontent over economic conditions. Postmaster General Farley seems to think Mr. Roosevelt will not be a candidate for a third term, and Mr. Roosevelt himself in his public addresses has spoken about leaving the White House at the end of his present term. But the "draft" idea which Coolidge resisted and actually discouraged is still vivid in the memory of political observers. Mr. Roosevelt can insist now that he is not a candidate and that he does not want to run, but unless he definitely puts his foot down on "draft-Roosevelt" propaganda, he will shortly be the center of what the public will be asked to believe is a spontaneous demand that the anti-third term tradition be violated.

Two Democratic governors from two big states—Pennsylvania and Texas—have gone on record public ly as endorsing Mr. Roosevelt for a third term. This is likely to be followed by other prominent New Deal governors and officials in the next three years, so that by 1940 the country will be confronted with a third term issue with at least three years of momentum behind it. It will be interesting to see whether

Mr. Roosevelt does anything to squelch the draft movement or acquiesces in it.

There is, of course, nothing in the constitution about second or third terms, though, to be sure, Mr. Roosevelt has not been particularly concerned even about things that are written in the constitution. The literal fact is, however, that there is no legal or constitutional barrier to a third term for a president—only the barrier of a strong public opinion, which hitherto has accepted the philosophy best expressed by Governor Woodrow Wilson in 1912, when, in referring to third terms for presidents of the United States, he said, "there is no indispensable man."

Milwaukee Man Elected Head of Lutheran Synod

Rev. John Brenner Returned to Office at Convention Here

The Rev. John Brenner, Milwaukee, was returned to office as general president of the Evangelical Lutheran joint synod of Wisconsin and other states at the opening session of the biennial convention yesterday afternoon at St. Paul Lutheran church.

Most of the principal officers were reelected for another term. They are the Rev. John Witt, Norfolk, Neb., second vice president; the Rev. Karl Kraus, Lansing, Mich., secretary; the Rev. Otto Hoyser, Winneconne, recording secretary; the Rev. E. Hahn, Naper, Neb., member of the board of trustees. The Rev. John Gauss, Jenera, Ohio, was chosen as a new member of the board of trustees. Dr. J. H. Ott, Watertown, was named syndical historian, the Rev. G. E. Boettcher, Hortonville, was chosen statistician, Paul Dowidat, Minneapolis, was elected railroad secretary, Prof. John Meyer, Thiensville, was named to the school committee, and W. Manthey, Milwaukee, was made teacher.

The board of control for educational institutions include the Rev. William Sauer, Milwaukee, and R. Freihube, Milwaukee, Lutheran seminary at Thiensville; F. H. Reizlaff, New Ulm, Minn.; Dr. Martin Luther college at New Ulm; the Rev. A. Schultz, Milwaukee; Harold Schumann and Ed Seifert, Watertown; Northwestern college at Watertown; F. C. Trier, Saginaw, Mich., Michigan Lutheran seminary at Saginaw; the Rev. W. Meyer, Watertown, S. D., W. J. Mehlberg, Raymond S. D. and John Klein, Glenham, S. D., Northwestern Lutheran academy at Mobridge, S. D.

Service On Board

Other board members are the Rev. L. F. Branches, Jordan, Minn., and Andrew Ruehling, Belle Plaine, Minn., for the Institution for the Aged at Belle Plaine; John Ungrath, Milwaukee, for Northwestern Publishing House.

Exhorting his listeners to "Keep the Word," the Rev. Mr. Brenner, gave the opening sermon Wednesday morning at a German service at St. Paul church.

"Keeping the Word makes a church precious in the eyes of the Lord," he said, "and insures the church of the Lord's future protection and blessing."

He pointed to the dangers that confront and surround one in this day and indicated that these dangers are peculiarly difficult to deal with because of the wide scope of influence which they exert upon all people today due to the various means of communication. And yet, he added, in just this day as in the days of the persecutions of the Christians, the church only hope is in the "keeping of the Word."

"Keep the Word."

"We look too much upon the things we do and too little upon the things the Lord has promised to the church," said President Brenner and he closed with the hope that the endeavors of the joint synod for the next two years be guided by the exhortation of the Scripture passage, "Keep the Word."

At the afternoon session the president gave his biennial report, showed progress in new congregations, new missions and in offerings. He reported a surplus of $4,000 in the treasury and reduction of the syndical debt by $35,000.

body was discovered a week ago and portions of the victim are being subjected to tests for poison, Schattie reported.

He said Mrs. Hahn came to Kohler in his last illness and that she claimed Kohler bequeathed her the $12,000 home in which she has resided with her telegrapher-husband.

George Heis, 62, a coal merchant who said he had been unable to walk since becoming ill from eating food offered by Mrs. Hahn, filed another larceny warrant charging theft of a $75 diamond ring and $140. Mrs. Hahn denied Heis' charge, insisting he gave her the ring during their short acquaintance.

said police had learned that Obendorfer, Wagner, Heis, another man and two elderly sisters, Mrs. Ollie Kohler, 79, and Mrs. Mary Arnold, 95, had become ill suddenly shortly after making the acquaintance of Mrs. Hahn.

Mr. Schattie said Mrs. Hahn admitted signing Wagner's name to a check for $1,000 which she presented for payment the day of his death, June 3. The name was written in English, although Wagner could write only in German, Schattie said.

The officer also quoted her as admitting asking a Cincinnati Building and Loan association to transfer for $1,000 of Obendorfer's money to the Denver National bank.

Dr. Willard K. Hills, who attended the cobbler before he died, said Mrs. Hahn brought Obendorfer to the hospital in a taxi, that he was in a stupor when he reached there and did not recover from it before his death two days later.

Dr. Hills said he could not determine any natural cause for death, and therefore, did not sign a death certificate.

Urge Health Check
For Children Before School Work Begins

Appleton parents are urged to cooperate with a "Summer Round-Up" by the Parent-Teachers association and the state medical society to insure the children entering school this fall free from physical defects. A child's progress in school is influenced by his physical condition, and one who enters school free from physical defects has a much better chance for normal progress and for happiness in his association with other children the organizations suggest.

The main object of the "round-up" is to have each child examined and treated by the family physician and dentist. The younger the child is, the more important it is that he be examined. Each child should have a thorough examination of the eyes, ears, nose and throat, tuberculin tests, vaccination for smallpox, immunization for diphtheria, and a general dental examination. Dr. J. C. Troxel, school physician, is asking that parents do their best to cooperate in seeing that their children enter school in good physical condition, with all defects corrected.

Property owners in the village wanting sidewalks built, must have their petition filed with the village clerk, Paul Lockschmidt, by next Monday. At a recent village board meeting, President Lang explained that the village crew could not build walks and they must be let out by contract.

Release 40,000
Fish in Waters of Winnebago Area

Stock Includes Perch, Bullheads, Bass and Sunfish

More than 40,000 fish, many of them full grown and ready to catch, recently were emptied into Winnebago waters at Millers Bay and Winneconne, supervised by Conservation Warden A. C. Chase. The work is part of the restocking program being conducted this year for the Winnebago area by the state conservation commission.

The fish released were perch, bullheads, small mouth blackbass, blue gills and sunfish. They were brought to Oshkosh from Phlox, Wis., where they were rescued from damlocked waters, and from small lakes which the department is using for trout plantings.

The tanks employed in the transfer are of a new type designed to eliminate the dangers of the old milk can carriers, each tank being supplied with oxygen equipment to insure a plentiful supply during the trip. To avoid handling the fish, the tanks are equipped with six-inch pipes which drain out into the lake.

The numerous plantings of fish in this area are expected to improve fishing for the next year or two. The restocking program is being supplemented with a rough fish removal program which is taking thousands of carp and sheephead from nearby waters.

The program was launched in

Weather "Squeakers" Should Read How Bad
Mosquitos Used to be

Appleton residents continually complaining of the heat and cold and dry weather, may do well to ponder a headline appearing exactly 25 years ago, on August 12, 1912, in the Appleton Evening Crescent, reading "Prayers Given for Dryness."

A dry summer may be uncomfortable, but there are mosquitoes. In 1912 there was plenty of rain, accompanied by what old settlers called the worst mosquito invasion they had experienced. Farmers complained that their stock suffered terribly, saying the cows gave much less milk and the horses must be watched in the fields to prevent their stampeding.

It was "absolutely impossible" for one to work in the fields without covering on the head and hands, and wearing two pairs of trousers. People spent all their time indoors—but not from choice. The only time they could stay outdoors was when they were "in the midst of a smudge."

Things were worse in the country than in the city. What must it have been in the country if in the city "children were crying with pain from swelling faces and ankles and while older people may not have been crying there was many a remark let slip which sounded like—or words to that effect."

WARM WATER REVIVES

Chicago—"Sorry, but they're dead," said the expressman as he delivered three South American humming birds to Karl Plath, curator of birds at Brookfield zoo, Chicago.

But Plath bathed the birds in lukewarm water. Then he breathed gently upon them to warm them.

They stirred and Plath worked fast.

He mixed honey and distilled water, added a few drops of brandy and put the nectar into glass feeding cups. The little birds were wobbly but they got the idea when Plath prodded them against the cups.

POSSIBILITIES UNDER THE WAGNER LAW.

Extreme cases make red hot reading, are sometimes far from fair and yet, occasionally, set a law off in outline so that its vices or virtues may the more quickly be seen.

Such an extreme case is found with the National Electric Products Company at Ambridge, Pennsylvania, owner of a flourishing business furnishing 1800 jobs and paying out 5 millions a year in wages.

We copy the declared situation as set forth in the editorial columns of the New York World-Telegram:

The company last May signed a closed shop contract with an A. F. of L. union, after electricians had threatened a widespread boycott against its products unless it did so.
The contract gave non-members 21 days to join the union.

Just before that period expired CIO unionists struck and after two weeks of idleness there was a violent riot when A. F. of L. members tried to return to work through CIO picket lines.

Finally there came a truce when the company tried to deal with CIO
and offered all its employees their old jobs without prejudice. But out of the truce came an A. F. of L. suit, which has just been won in federal court, compelling the company to abide by its closed shop contract.

Also, there came CIO charges before the regional labor board that the company had violated the Wagner Act,
and that the A. F. of L. organization is a "company union." The CIO expects to win an order for a plant election, and to emerge victorious from
the election.

The reader should not miss the fact that there is no quarrel between employer
and employee about wages or hours or working conditions or anything else that used to be a bone of contention. Here is a battle for power, for supremacy pure and simple.

Nearly 2,000 employees walk the streets or hang around the kitchen at home, not because some Tom Girdler or other hard-headed employer will not talk to them,
hear their complaints or attempt to compromise on differences of opinion.

Between the A. F. of L. and the CIO,
between the federal courts and the Labor Relations Board, the company is in a worse position than anyone that was between the devil and the deep blue sea.
Such a one might be able to swim long distances on the sea but here the company is bruised and damned whatever it does,
and the men are bruised and damned
whatever they do. And neither the courts
nor the Labor Relations Board can iron
it out whatever they do.

That looks like a home run for the Wagner law.

COHEN AND CORCORAN

The record of Messrs. Cohen and Corcoran with the federal government is worthy of particular note.

When these two brilliant men were brought to Washington neither was speak-en of as a Brain Truster and yet they were by far the most capable men who have taken up public service in a decade.

When Cohen and Corcoran came to Washington neither knew the President.
Fortunately for the country he learned of their virtues.

They are the men who were responsible for the Securities Law, one of the excellent projects of the Administration.
But their real monument may be found in the public utilities holding company law. That was the most intricate subject that any two men might expect to overcome through mental grappling and brilliant resourcefulness.

The law mentioned consists of 65 printed pages. It appears to preserve all that is good in the public utility holding company structure while it liquidates the bad, and gives good promise of protecting the future.

Men of the Tugwell order, erroneously given credit for genius, succeed in conveying this impression only because they handle themselves so well in parlor or on rostrums. They have an answer for every question. Yet nothing they do works.

Men like Cohen and Corcoran, who have real genius, haven't an answer for every question but they will take time to figure one out. Seldom do they grace the parlor and most often are ill at ease upon the platform. Genius simply does not blow its own trumpet.

And by that token trumpet blowers do
not carry genius.

A victory abroad against Rome's enemies entitled the winning general to enter Rome in triumph.

Unhappy is the man, said a statesman of the Middle Ages as he laid his head upon the block, who trusts in the word of a king.

Thrice unhappy is the nation that doesn't mind its own business.

And by that token trumpet blowers do
not carry genius.

THE MALE TWIST TO THE GAG

Feminine qualities developed through the generations as the result of woman's position in the world are responsible for the prevailing defense when a woman shoots her husband that she bought the gun only for a suicidal purpose but figured her destruction should occur in the presence of the spouse that her love and sacrifice might be the better impressed.

Of course misfortune was bound to intervene, just as the best laid plans of mice and men have the habit of going off half cocked, getting the mice in a trap and the men in jail or the morgue, although the latter be unbaited with cheese. Anyway, by the time the newspaper photographers got around the husband is found bleeding on the carpet while the self-sacrificing woman remains to sob, wear a widow's veils and show her best silk stockings to a jury. The jury, if the stockings outline the proper mold and shape, free the lady, scowl at the prosecutor and willingly recommend the defendant to another victim.

Men who find themselves in a difficult position because named in an indictment for murder have developed a profoundly different technique, forced as they have been by circumstances to do something in preservation of their manly honor.

One Chalmers, in far off New York, under arrest for the murder of his erstwhile light-o'-love, is following almost exactly the defense of General Denhardt, Kentucky gentleman of honor, who recently drew a split jury, for his adroit presentation of the idea when a lady who was trying to avoid his purpose to marry her was found dead in his presence on a lonely country road.

Chalmers, like Denhardt, had a failing for carrying "an old pistol" in the car.
His lady, like Denhardt's, could smell a pistol a mile away. Both women when crossed in their purposes slipped into a state of melancholia and almost unconsciously grabbed for the gun. Denhardt had his lady taking advantage of his temporary absence from the car to destroy herself. Upon this bend in the road the artists have differed. Chalmers may have considered that a scuffle for the gun in which he risked his manly form but with the little devils of misfortune against him made a more natural finish for a love affair that had curdled. The fact the lady was shot twice will necessitate evidence of how one explosion in a gun may au-tomatically produce another. And since this sort of evidence is based upon opinion it will be forthcoming in volumes.

The high percentage of success that has attended a woman's version of a slaying over a man's fictional creation is perhaps attributable to the "law of averages" in its eternal battle at Equalization. But it would be a mistake in the woman's case to expect the same sort of a verdict from a jury of women, as of men, just as a jury of men in the man's case has little patience with the tawdry pretense offered for the violent ending of a human life.

Finally there came a truce when
the company tried to deal with CIO
and offered all its employees their old jobs without prejudice. But out of the truce came an A. F. of L. suit,
which has just been won in federal court, compelling the company to abide by its closed shop contract.

Also, there came CIO charges before
the regional labor board that the company had violated the Wagner Act,
and that the A. F. of L. organization
is a "company union." The CIO expects to win an order for a plant election, and to emerge victorious from
the election.

The reader should not miss the fact that there is no quarrel between employer
and employee about wages or hours or working conditions or anything else that
used to be a bone of contention. Here is a battle for power, for supremacy pure
and simple.

Nearly 2,000 employees walk the streets
or hang around the kitchen at home, not because some Tom Girdler or other hard-
headed employer will not talk to them,
hear their complaints or attempt to compromise on differences of opinion.

Between the A. F. of L. and the CIO,
between the federal courts and the Labor Relations Board, the company is in a worse position than anyone that was between the devil and the deep blue sea.
Such a one might be able to swim long
distances on the sea but here the company
is bruised and damned whatever it does,
and the men are bruised and damned
whatever they do. And neither the courts
nor the Labor Relations Board can iron
it out whatever they do.

That looks like a home run for the Wagner law.

ABANDON ALL HOPE. THAT MAN IS BACK

OUR correspondent staggered momentarily into the office Tuesday afternoon to pick up the waiting bill, and was greeted with the news that Stoo, custodian of this space for the past two weeks was ill and would I please get the column out for Wednesday? Maybe the word please wasn't in the conversation, but I like to think that it was.

It was only a sudden flash of memory that spared your correspondent when he recalled out loud that his vacation didn't end until come sunrise on Wednesday. Very well, then, he could get the column out on Wednesday morning, deadlines notwithstanding.

Stoo recovered enough, however, to show up yesterday morning and toss his last effort for the season into the hopper. So everything went off on schedule. I am back, I hear, and to Stoo many thanks for a nice job. Thanks, also, to you contributors who helped him along.

It was in Boston where I got to talking with the drug store clerk while a prescription to fix the better half's reaction to crab meat was being assembled.

"This sure is a long way to come for pharmacine," I said mournfully.

This was the clerk's lead to ask me from whence I came. He did.

"Wisconsin," he asked doubtfully, "is that out near Idaho?"

It was a somewhat delicate job to break the news that Boston, Mass., is an easier trip from Appleton than Moscow, Idaho.

It also appears that we have wide open spaces here where it's possible to drive hundreds of miles without meeting traffic of any great quantity. I thought about that coming up Highway 41 between Milwaukee and Oshkosh.

But it's not surprising. We saw but three Wisconsin license plates between Detroit and Newark.

New Hampshire has interesting laws concerning the serving of liquor. If you serve it, you can't have an orchestra. If you have an orchestra, all spirits must be off the premises. The gayer spots (and this is only relative) serve until ten forty five — the hour when all servants must stop — and at eleven o'clock, they trot out an orchestra. You can be served on Sunday if you order food.

In Massachusetts you have to go home at eleven forty five of a Saturday night, although the closing hour is not as definite on other nights.

That's why New York state is so much like Wisconsin. You can walk into every third establishment and crowd your way up to the bar.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

A CERTAIN PERSON

The thought of a certain person
Is like a refreshing breeze.
I look on a green oasis,
And listen to praying trees.

When, weighed by the day's endeavor,
Vainly I try to rise.
The thought of a certain person
Can lift me to Paradise.

The thought of a certain person
Is food and drink to my soul.
beckoning ever onward
Till we meet at the starry goal!

Communists, Fascists Get Mad When Compared

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—The easiest way to annoy a communist or a fascist is to say that one is as bad as the other and that they have so many identical vices as to be generally alike. That makes them wild.

Yet both deny freedom of speech and of the press for the same reason which is to prevent their subjects from learning about or even giving consideration to any other system. Both find it necessary to govern by terror and espionage. Both are highly militaristic and both believe that honor is served by an act, however vile, which can be construed as an act in the service of the cause. So all agreements by either of them must be regarded as containing a mental reservation. It is impossible to trust either on oath.

The communists loathe the slave press of Italy and Germany, and little more affection for ours, but if it is crazy to imagine an article in an Italian or German paper admiring democracy or communism it is just as crazy to imagine an article in a Moscow paper even hinting that fascism or the American system might have some merit. An Italian or German who attempted to deliver a public speech in praise of communism would be executed or exiled, and the same would be likely to happen if a waiter in a restaurant should overhear a private conversation to that effect. The same risks exist for the Russian under communism, so the ordinary citizen is no better off in one country than in either of the others.

Government Maintains Control of Business

Private industry was protected in Italy and Germany in the beginning, but after a while it began to lose its rights as the government was forced to assume control and nowadays the state has final authority in everything relating to business. Meanwhile, in Russia, according to the Trotsky communists, a great betrayal has taken place and the present regime represents nothing but a dirty capitalist trying to keep the fair name of communism.

The really hot communists turn tempt to usurp a government function is out of line.

Mussolini will not permit a man to quit a job to loaf or look for another, because that would be sabotage, but the same is true in Russia and, of course, strikes are absolutely out under both systems on the ground of the national welfare. In neither country does the workman have the right to strip the gears, pour oil or acid over cloth in work or muck and sand into the machines and then walk out to enforce a demand for more pay or shorter hours. Communists here admire these methods and delight who did that in their fair communistic land would be stood up against a wall and . . . br-r-mp him away men.

Protection of Middle Class is Just Talk

It is said that in Italy and Germany the middle class is protected, but that was just sales talk. After they got their dictators they found that they were taxed and pushed around by party officials, mostly slugs of the Ku-Klux, patrolier type, to such an extent that they couldn't call their lives their own any more.

The Italian or German faxes and compulsory contributions would drive an American middle-classer crazy, and Americans are so indignant at officious government intrusion in private affairs that a lot of our people would punch some bum in uniform right on the nose—and then get executed, under fascism.

It was the same in Italy and Germany in the early days, but the power of the dictators was so great and their tough guys were so murderous that the middle-class just surrendered. Now they aren't even allowed to think non-party thoughts, but have to pretend that they believe any idiotic idea that

Billion People Back From State Legion Meet

Boyden, Robert Goldsmith, William Toomey and the Messrs. and Mmes. I. C. Sherman, Henry Horn, Otto Bartz, A. J. Seip, John Egan, Paul Engel, Louis Huijbrecht, Robert Heings, Robert Geiger and Arthur Lau. Robert Heings and Arthur Lau were the delegates for the local Arno Bloedorn post and Mrs. I. C. Sherman and Mrs. Louis Huijbrecht were delegates for the local American Legion Auxiliary unit.

I. C. Sherman was elected 6th district commander for the ensuing term.

Among the local people who witnessed the legion parade were Mrs. W. D. Toomey, Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Wagner, Peggy Jean, and Audrey Seip, Bobbie Bartz, Mrs. Eleanor Willis, Theodore Long, Mr. and Mrs.

is prescribed for them, and there is no fun being middle-class under those conditions. Most intelligent middle-class Germans regard Joe Goebbels as a loathsome little creature, but they have to shut up and do as he says or else.

You don't have to take any outsider's word as to the communists. Just listen to the Trotsky communists working out on the Moscow communists and Joe Stalin, and then listen to the Moscow communists on the subject of the Trotsky type. Then add them up, divide by two and see if fascism, nazism and communism don't give the same result.

Kowalke Is Speaker at Synod Meet

The church needs no new systems in dealing with the youth of today, she has only to use and exploit the old systems, said Prof. E. Kowalke, president of Northwestern college, Waterford, in an essay entitled "The Church and Its Youth," which was a highlight of this morning's program at the biennial convention of the Evangelical Lutheran joint synod of Wisconsin and other states in session at St. Paul Lutheran church this week.

Christian services, home training, Christian schools, that is, Bible, Sunday and day schools, Christian high schools and colleges, are the traditional means the church has been using for bringing the gospel to her young people, the speaker stated.

The speaker stated that the period of adolescence is commonly a difficult and often an anxious and perplexing one for the adolescent himself as well as for those who are charged with his rearing and education. It is a period when profound changes take place at St. Paul indicates when he says, "When I was a child, I spoke as a child; I understood as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things," continued Prof. Kowalke.

Parents Can Help

The church must do what Christ commanded, he said, stating that this is done first through regular church services, especially through the sermon and the administration of the Lord's Supper. To bring young people to church that they may hear the preaching and partake of communion is first of all the duty of the parents, the speaker said, particularly of the fathers. The faithful pastor who observes that his young people are in special danger of drifting away from word and sacrament, he continued, will make it a special part of his pastoral care to admonish the young people and, what is sometimes more necessary, to admonish the parents.

During the business session this morning the Rev. E. Benjamin Schlueter, Oshkosh, was elected first vice president, the Rev. E. Birkholz, Redwood Falls, Minn., was named to Dr. Martin Luther college board, and the Rev. O. Frey, Saginaw, Mich., was elected to the board of the Michigan Lutheran Seminary, A. Wandering, Ann Arbor, Mich., was named to the board of support and the Rev. Henry Gieschen, Ft. Atkinson, was elected to the school committee.

The Rev. W. J. Schulze, Hutchinson, Minn., chairman of the mission board, completed his report on home missions this morning, pointing out that the church is encouraging missionaries to open Christian day school as the best means of laying a solid foundation for the future growth of the church.

The Rev. J. Ruege, West Allis, chairman of Indian missions, gave the Indian mission report, stressing the work among the Apaches in Arizona. He stated that at Blylas in the synod has the only school for Indian children in a radius of 40 miles. In 1936, he said, Pastor Guenther rounded out 25 years of missionary service in Apacheland and the Indians observed the event in colorful Apache fashion. Pastor Guenther resigned as superintendent of the Indian mission that year. Pastor Ruege added.

About 12 members of the Young People's Missionary circle of Emmanuel Evangelical church had a picnic meeting Wednesday evening at the Kaukauna Tourist park. In addition to the picnic supper, a short study and prayer meeting was also held.

Police Find Big Bear

Terrorizing Farmers

Hoquiam, Wash.—(P)—So the frontier is gone, is it?

Two police officers here have a different idea. Answering a call to a farm several miles out of the city, Chief Norman Foote and Officer Forbes Barrett found several farm families in terror, the children afraid to leave the doorsteps of their homes and the family pigs squealing in fear.

The officers ranged in the woods, fired one well-placed shot and dragged back a 200-pound black bear which had been foraging in the neighborhood. As soon as the bear's mate is shot they expect the community to be safe again.

FLAME TRAIL

the rope on the pommel of his saddle. Stepping swiftly over to Scrap Johnson, he pressed his gun into his back, at the same time putting a loop around his raised hands. Jerking them down, he expertly trussed his arms to his sides, then tripped him and finished the job of gog-ticing him.

A Second Lesson
Leaving him where he had dropped, Ted strode over to Kay, and with quick, clean cuts of his knife, severed the ropes that bound her.

"Are you all right?" His breath came quickly, as he gazed anxiously into Kay's eyes.

She nodded, a tremulous, reassuring smile on her lips. "Yes, thanks to you."

Ted handed her her father's gun. "Take this, and if anything happens to me, you can protect yourself. But nothing will happen." His voiced vibrated with the same deadly fury.

"What are you going to do?" Kay demanded.

"If you'll cut these bonds and ride away from here," Kay's voice was low and intent, as she held him with her gaze. "I'll agree to keep still about what's happened. That's your only chance to stay on this range and live."

For a moment he wavered. Then, with a hoarse laugh, he stooped down beside her, and put his arm around her.

"A bird in the hand's worth two in the bush," he gloated, breathing heavily. His eyes avoided hers and focused on her lips, and Kay felt a sick rush of terror.

In their absorption, neither heard the thud of distant hoofbeats, but now, at the same moment, they both became aware of them.

Scrap Johnson dropped Kay with an oath, sprang to his feet and seized his gun.

In the same instant, Kay kicked out fiercely against his shins, her bound feet catching him unawares and throwing him off his balance. He crashed to the ground, his gun exploding harmlessly in the air.

Through waves of blackness, Kay heard the pounding hoofs, and Ted Gaynor's voice calling, "Lie still! If you move, you're a goner!" Galvanized to life again by the miracle of hearing Ted's voice, Kay shrank away from the prone figure at her feet, that suddenly ceased struggling at the deadly threat behind Ted's command. With her hand in her throat, she turned and gazed at the oncoming figure of her rescuer.

Taking in the situation at a glance, Ted pulled his mount to a sliding stop and slipped off. His eyes were fixed on Scrap Johnson, whom he kept covered with the gun Kay had given him.

A foot or two away from Scrap Johnson, his gun lay where it had fallen, just out of reach. Shifting his arm for one fraction of a second, Ted fired, shattering the gun to bits. Then he covered the man on the ground again, before he had a chance to move.

"Get out of his reach, Kay," Ted called, without once taking his eyes off his victim. "I don't aim to have him try to use you as a shield!"

Kay obeyed without a word, dragging herself to one side.

"Now, get up, you!" It seemed to Kay that she had never heard such controlled fury in any human voice.

After a moment's hesitation, the Flying Six puncher rose to his feet.

"Pitch 'em and keep 'em there!" With a snarl, he obeyed. Kay glared fearfully from one man to the other.

"Turn 'round!" Ted's voice rang out again. As his prisoner obeyed, he reached with his free hand for in her mouth, she watched the struggle. Both men were slight in build, though Scrap Johnson had a decided advantage in weight and general physical fitness.

The indignity that Kay had suffered however, added an invincible fury to Ted's attack that far outweighed any mere physical advantage.

Sidestepping his opponent's fist-swinging rush, he tore back at him with a blow that sent him staggering backwards. Recovering his balance, Scrap Johnson lowered his head with a roar of rage and butted into Ted's stomach like a battering ram. But Ted countered with a swinging uppercut that found its mark.

Following up his advantage like one possessed, he landed one terrific punch after another, finally forcing his antagonist to his knees. Panting and blinking the sweat out of his eyes, Ted drew back and let the groggy puncher struggle to his feet.

Then Scrap Johnson put all he had in a wild lunge. Ted saw his opportunity and drove a knockout blow to his chin.

Scrap's head snapped back with a sickening twist. Groaning, he toppled to the ground and lay still.

Overturned Boat Still May Serve As Life Preserver

Appleton sportsmen whose activities take them onto lakes and rivers have learned a lot of tricks about what to do if a boat or skiff tips over or fills with water, and it all boils down to "stay with the mark."

Many of them say the flat-bottomed rowboat is perhaps the safest all-round life preserver. If it tips or fills with water it will not sink, and will safely hold its ordinary seating capacity even when full of water. But don't stand up, if the boat is full of water and just one person gets on his feet his weight will cause the boat to side-slip, they warn. Even if the boat does turn over, it then furnishes a floating air chamber that will sustain more heads above water than could be held in the boat.

It is well to teach children to row first with one oar, and then with two, so that in case of an accident they will know how to paddle with just one oar and how to scull from the stern, the boatmen advise.

McCarty Tells Rotarians About Canadian Visit

Postmaster Describes Rigid System of Liquor Sales Control

Kaukauna — Telling about his Canadian trip at the time he attended the Wisconsin postmasters' convention at Superior last week, Richard H. McCarty, Kaukauna postmaster gave an informal talk to the Kaukauna Rotary club at their meeting in the Hotel Kaukauna yesterday noon.

"The liquor control system in Canada is interesting," he said. "Taverns are hard to find, and most of them are in hotels. The only liquor sold over the bar is beer or ale."

Women are not allowed in bar rooms, he explained as he told how tavern keepers enforced the strict regulation of permitting women to be served only in side rooms of the taverns.

Hard liquor can be obtained only at the liquor stores, and only with a license to buy it. None may be consumed at the stores, he said.

Gasoline stations on the American side of the Canadian border do a big business, the speaker explained. "People load up with gasoline before they cross the border and wait until they return from Canada to buy again. The big Canadian gallon costs 35 cents, and people say it isn't so good as American gas."

McCarty visited a paper mill at Fort Williams Canada, one of the largest in the north, he said. At the postmasters' convention he attended the Superior Rotary club meeting and heard Dr. F. E. Townsend speak there.

"Townsend has a great personality, and he has a lot of enthusiasm for his plan. He says that he is confident that it can work."

Digging of the sewer ditch for the 2-block flow has not been started yet, but as soon as work at the pump house and the cesspool is completed, more men will be put on the job to do the digging. All work should be done in about two weeks.

31 Young People on County NYA Pay Roll

Kaukauna — The NYA payroll in Outagamie county for the first part of August amounts to $255.45, according to the report sent to the Madison headquarters yesterday by Ben Faust, district supervisor of the youth administration projects.

There are 31 young people on the pay roll in all, 12 of them from Kaukauna. At present they are employed doing recreational work, typing in offices of some of the government departments in the county, cataloguing in libraries, landscaping and repairing books. Some have worked during the summer as assistants to the city nurse and some in school offices.

Order Swimmers to Use Foot Bath Before Entering City Pool

Kaukauna — To start a movement curbing the infection by athletes' foot among swimmers in the city pool, a new regulation that all swimmers walk through a disinfectant foot bath before entering the pool was introduced this week.

Placed in the entrance door to the pool, a solution of hypochlorite is kept in a small rubber tank that swimmers walk through. At the end of each day floors of the shower rooms and dressing rooms at the pool are washed down in the disinfectant from the tank, and the next morning a fresh solution is made for the foot disinfection.

The regulation was enforced this week to prevent the spread of athlete's foot. "The disinfectant gives us a chance to control the infection," Clifford Kemp, recreational director explained, "for athlete's foot is a dangerous menace at any public dressing rooms."

Merchants Trim Thilmany Squad

South Side Team Scores Twice in Sixth to Salvage Game

Kaukauna — South Side Merchants edged out a 5-4 victory over the Thilmany office crew last night, as they scored two runs in the sixth inning to salvage the game and their hold on third place in a twilight softball league game played at the library grounds. The Merchants have three wins and one loss on the books.

Tonight the first place Pantry Lunch team will meet the fifth place Ritz tavern outfit, in a game that the leaders must win to keep their tie with the Thilmany mill team for first.

Scoring for the first time since they entered the league late in the second half, the office force team had the game won until the sixth, when the Merchants got two runs.

The office team got three runs in the first to take the lead, and the Merchants scored one. The office force added one more in the third and the Merchants got two but were still trailing 4-3 until the sixth.

Art Koehne took a turn at the mound for the Merchants last night, as he deserted his usual short stop position. Jack

Better Varieties Of Grass Aim of Pasture Research

Program Calls for Con- tinuing Studies of Management

Single grass plants in a pasture do not get much attention because there are so many of them, but a pasture is the sum of the individual plants in it as surely as a crop of corn is the sum of all the corn plants in the field, according to a bulletin received by R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent, from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Farmers seed the more productive strains of wheat and other cereals. But generally they overlook the point that there probably is as much difference in bluegrasses, for example, as there is in wheats. One plant may produce several times as much feed as another, and if all the bluegrass plants in a pasture were as good as the best of them, that kind of pasture might well provide feed for more animals for a longer season.

This is roughly the idea back of federal and state pasture research. P. V. Cardon, in charge of pasture plants for the United States Department of Agriculture, points out that grass breeding has lagged behind, while cereals have been improved by selection of desirable single plants and by the crossing of varieties to combine the best features of each.

The grass research program of the Department calls for continuing studies of pasture management, fertilizer tests, and seeding methods, but it also provides for special attention to selecting and breeding better varieties of grass plants, kinds that will add up to a larger total in feed value.

Appleton Planes May Join Air Tour

From 25 to 50 Machines Will Visit Southern and Central State Cities

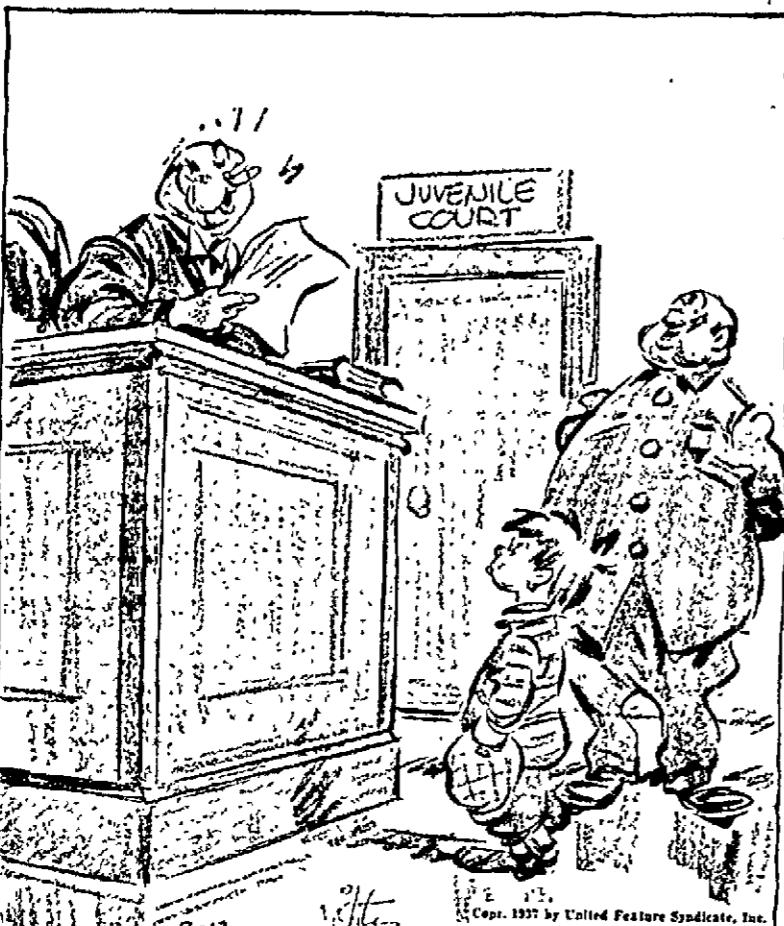

Two Appleton planes may join the postponed air tour of Wisconsin to be made early in September, according to Elwyn West, manager of the Outagamie county airport. At least 25 and possibly 50 planes will take part in the tour. The flight will be started from Milwaukee on Monday, Sept. 13.

Principal cities of southern and central Wisconsin will be visited by the air flight, but plans to fly to Superior and other cities in far northern Wisconsin have been abandoned, according to S. J. Wittman, Wisconsin governor of the National Aeronautical association.

The route of the planes in September will include Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, Janesville, Madison, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Appleton, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Wausau and possibly Eau Claire, Wisconsin Rapids and Lake Delton.

Castaways of the "Wager"

II-70 MEN DARE THE SEA

"Wager," which was flooded with water but had not gone to pieces. Tools and objects of other kind were obtained, but not much food. Hunting parties went out and then, and sometimes came back with sea-fowls. The men also killed on gathering wild celery and shellfish, but at best they did not have enough to eat. Many became sick and died. In a few months, only 9 remained alive.

Some of the men were nervous and wanted to go away in the long boat. This was repaired as well as could be. About fifty men boarded it. Their plan was to go through the Strait of Magellan into the Atlantic ocean, then to sail northward until they reached a port in Brazil.

The captain of the wrecked "Wager" was not willing to try the voyage, but the men were firm in their plan. Out of the bay, the long boat was rowed, and soon it was followed by the cutter. Both boats were fitted so small sails could be run up. Seventy men went away leaving only 20 behind.

Bravely the little vessels fought the waves of the sea. The cutter went down during a storm, and those aboard were lost. The long boat came to anchor beside a island, and some of those on it decided to stay there rather than dare the waves any longer. What happened to them, no one knows.

At last, the longboat reached the mouth of the River Plate, and settlement of white people was found. Thirty men in that were saved their lives. We do not have an exact record of what happened to them, but some of them obtained passage aboard a Portuguese vessel and were taken to Lisbon. From there they went to England, having been away two and a half years. The rest probably obtained work.

Study Ability of Towns, Counties to Meet Relief Costs

County Boards Association Compiles Data for Use By Legislators

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau) Madison—Scientific and authentic data on which legislative bodies may determine the ability of local units of governments to bear the cost of public welfare expenditures, including relief, pensions, and aid to the handicapped, will be made available shortly with the completion of an exhaustive study by the Wisconsin County Boards association of the governmental receipts and disbursements of all towns, cities, villages and counties in the state from 1925 to date, according to A. J. Thelen, secretary of the association, which maintains its general offices here.

At the present time, Thelen explained the basis for reckoning financial ability of local governmental units is a system which gives weight to such items as estimated farm income, motor vehicle registrations, per capita net taxable incomes, and such material. Since local units of government rely completely on real estate taxes for their revenues, the other factors are meaningless in determining the ability of local units to support public welfare costs.

"We believe a complete analysis of governmental receipts and governmental costs, as suggested, would be the proper manner to determine what percentage of funds are able to be raised locally for the different forms of public welfare."

Offers Many Headaches

The participation of local units in public welfare costs is at present a moot question, a question which provides many headaches for officials entrusted with the administration of state aids particularly. At the present time, for instance, northern counties are receiving practically all of their relief funds from the state treasury, from the receipts of statewide taxation while the more favorably situated southern, central and eastern counties are bearing their own burden. Yet there is at present no scientific method of determining the relative ability of counties to pay such costs, or of municipalities, Thelen said.

The association now has a corps of 90 workers making a detailed audit of all the finances of all local governmental units, county by county. Preliminary tables for the northeastern counties, including Brown and Outagamie, will be ready in about a month, Thelen said.

From a half hearted, ineffective organization a decade ago, the Wisconsin County Boards association has grown into a powerful unit which during the last session of the legislature pushed through a broad program of benefit to county government.

Seeks Efficiency

Now maintaining a permanent headquarters, directed by Thelen, a former Green Bay resident, the association is working toward more uniform and more efficient county government. Besides lobbying in the legislature, the office represents county interests before the quasi-legislative state departments, and keeps a close watch on the activities of congress and reports periodically to its membership.

Thelen has just mailed a bulky report on the 1937 legislature to all the county board members in the state, showing the result of the association's influence in general legislation, and giving detailed information on all laws which pertain especially to county governmental affairs.

Perhaps the most notable achievement of the association was the successful amendment of the LaFollette administration's deficiency appropriation measure in the opening days of the session. The association successfully argued before the legislators that deficient payments for social security aids to counties through June 30 of this year are a legal claim on the state government, and forced an amendment providing almost $600,000 to pay these back claims.

Paid Back Accounts

By judicious pressure on senators and assemblymen, the association managed to obtain passage of the measure as amended, and, according

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—Some massive omnresent diplomat ought to take charge at Hollywood previews of film relations with the film stars.

The previewing studio invariably lights up the sky and turns on the ballyhoo, attracting huge crowds of fans and autograph hunters. To control the autograph hunters, the studio invariably employs police-men.

And the fans come, as they would to any circus, and if they get treated the way Barbara Stanwyck was the other evening when a policeman mistook her for a fan, something ought to be done.

It's Always A Repetition

Miss Stanwyck thinks so, having had the novel experience of being treated like a fan. The experience included getting her arm twisted by the officer in his attempts to "protect" Robert Taylor, Miss Stanwyck's escort. Taylor, getting the usual fan rush as they entered the theater, had been swept away from Barbara. Later, with studio aides, he rushed to the rescue.

"Something," said Barbara next day, rubbing a bruised arm, "ought to be arranged about these things, both for the players and for the fans."

Hollywood thinks so, too, but the thing goes on. I've seen many a fan rush at previews, with the cops stepping in, not always but sometimes as roughly as the fellow who stopped Stanwyck. Maybe, now that it's happened to movie star, some more reasonable means of keeping order will be found.

Some of the fans, of course, bring it on themselves. They're the ones who think being a fan gives them the privilege of tearing at an actor's clothes, of breaking through restraining ropes—but there for the theater's regular customers as well as for the stars—and generally making themselves a nuisance.

As things are, however, the now popular previews stand a good chance of making enemies for the stars who are supposed, through appearances at them, to make new fans.

How Barbara Sees It

The Stanwyck attitude toward fans and autograph hunters is typical, and I think reasonable:

"I'm terribly flattered when anyone asks for my autograph," she says, "and I'm glad to give mine. I don't mean that I'm asked too often—usually I can come and go anywhere without being noticed. But there are times when it's impossible to stay in one place and keep on giving them. I still remember the time some friends were waiting for me, and I was late, and a girl stopped me for an autograph. When you sign one you have to sign six or the others think you're high-hat. So I explained I was late, and asked the girl please to give me time to report, against the wishes of Governor LaFollette. As a result Outagamie county got $12,821 for old age assistance, blind pensions and aids to dependent children which county officials believed the state had defaulted, while Brown county got $11,706.

Currently the association is working, through committees of highway commissioners and county board highway committeemen, for a revision of the state highway laws. Meetings of those committees will begin soon, and according to Thelen, will mean that county boards will take the offensive in highway legislation, rather than accept without question the products of the legislature.

Texas Mixed Drinkers Get Lots of Homework

Austin, Tex.—(AP) Texans who like their mixed drinks face at least two more years of mixing them at home or buying them at places which operate illegally.

Determined efforts to liberalize the liquor law to permit sales of mixed drinks in counties desiring them failed by a few votes in both branches of the Texas legislature. Under the law which replaced statewide prohibition two years ago, beer and wine may be consumed on the premises where sold but hard liquor may be dispensed in bottles only and cannot be consumed on the premises.

Reservations for B. D. M. Golf Jamboree Being Received

Committees are planning stunts, big prize list

Dan Courtney General Chairman of Program Scheduled Aug. 19

THE annual Butte des Mort Golf club jamboree, circus, day of golf or whatever you may wish to call it, will be held Thursday, Aug. 19, and from the number of reservations already in it promises to be one of the biggest events in the history of the club, according to Dan Courtney, chairman.

Just at the moment he's most interested in the reservations and entries. Invitations were sent out several days ago and although he's pleased at the response he'd like to hear from more of the members as to their plans. It's hard planning for a tournament when you don't know how many of the boys will be around, he points out.

Golfing will be permitted all day, Courtney announced, and there'll be more than enough opportunity for good golf and plenty of opportunity for fun. In other words the meet is being arranged to take care of everyone from Heber Pelkey, who is considered the acme of straight golf, to "Juicy" Grizlpatrick, who likes his golf with plenty of fun.

Arrangements are being made to play straight golf on the first nine holes with the only diversion being an oasis on the seventh where it also will rescue the thirsty lads who get lost on the last nine. The last nine holes will produce the trick shots and such like. There'll be no water stunts, however, excepting those which the golfer may get into because of his own ability or lack of ability to hit the ball.

Prizes will be secured in rather generous quantities again this year and will be offered for golf feats and feats not such good golf and others will be just plain, every-day.

Among some of the committee members are Bob Zaumeyer and Dick Mahony who will handle the ticket situation; Jack Belanger and Jim Whalen who will handle the entertainment angle; E. C. Schroeder who is considering the various stunts on the second nine; and Russ Flom and Gene Pierce, who are looking for the prizes.

Veterans of the Diamond

AL BAUER

(Editor's Note: This is another of a series of articles on veteran baseball players in this section.)

A. BAUER, who tosses 'em up for Seymour in the Northern Land o' Lakes league, may not be an old timer with the club or even in these parts but he's a veteran baseballer.

Bauer is serving his first year with Seymour having been with Little Chute in the Valley league and Kaukauna in the State league previously.

Al started playing ball when a youngster of 16 down at Melcher, Ia., and two years later went to Hutchinson, Kansas, in the Western association, for his first appearance in organized ball. From the Western association he moved up to Syracuse of the International league and thence to Kansas City of the American association. During his Class AA days he never lost more than five games a season.

The big hurler became ill while with Kansas City and spent eight months in the hospital undergoing several operations. He then remained out of baseball until 1933 when Les Smith, then managing the Kaukauna team and whom Al had learned to know in the Western

Kobals, Valley Irons Eye Title

Squads Collide This Evening for American City League Pennant

Kobals and Valley Irons will collide at Pierce park this evening in the first of a series of games to determine the American City league championship. Softball fans have been promised a sizzling game because the Tavern crew won the first round and the Valley Irons took the second half title.

Fred "Red" Cramer is slated to do mound duty for Kobals and Gene Kloses, who has not fully recovered from a fractured leg, will be held in reserve. Cramer has scored shutouts in three or four recent games for Kobals. Bobbie Dierer will get the starting call for the Valley Irons. He is considered one of the classiest pitchers in Appleton and need take his hat off to no other hurler.

Kobals claim 20 victories and 12 defeats against all opponents this season while Valley Irons claim 22 wins and 4 defeats. In contests with Kobals this season, the Irons have won two and lost one.

A collection will be taken at the championship games with proceeds being used to defray expenses of the annual league dinner.

Max Chiowanic, a record gate is predicted. In the old days a show of this kind would gross between $10,000 and $15,000 at least.

Risko, part Polish and part Italian, has always been a box office attraction. When he won the title from Teddy Yaros, the gate was $31,000 and he was guaranteed $25,000 with a privilege of $75 per cent of a $69,000 house when he lost the championship to Freddie Steele over the 15 round route at Seattle. In Black he is going to meet a fighter who knows that a victory means plenty of matches and big money.

Post-Tuttle Team Nearly Wins Two From Coated Paper

Takes First Game 6-5 but Darkness Halts Second in Fourth

THE WEEK'S GAMES
Monday—Machines 11, Woolens 8.
Tuesday—Fox River 8, Atlas 4.
Wednesday—Post-Tuttle 6, Coated 5; Post-Tuttle 4, Coated 1 (called at end of fourth).
Thursday—Machines versus Woolens.

NEXT WEEK'S GAME
Monday—Woolens versus Atlas.

THE Post-Tuttle and Coated Paper softball teams tried to play two games last evening out at Roosevelt field with the first starting at 5:30. But some of the lads failed to appear on time and as a result the first game didn't get started until almost 6 o'clock and the second never was finished for darkness enveloped the proceedings before 4 innnings could be played.

The Post-Tuttles won the first game 6 to 5 and were leading in the second, 4 to 1, when Umpire Block called a half. The P-T win means that the Woolen Mills, league leaders, now will have to win tonight's game with the Machines and another game next Monday evening with the Atlas. The Machines dumped the Woolens Monday night and Atlas also may prove tough.

If the Woolens lose one of their two remaining games, the unfinished Coated-Post-Tuttle game will have to be replayed and has been scheduled for Tuesday evening. Should the Woolens take both their games the race will be over.

Schroeder Homers

In the first game last night Coated opened with two runs. Feizer singled to right and Lloyd Schoeder jolted the P-T with a long homer to center.

The P-T started to get the runs back when Schade singled over second and stole second and third. Sternard then hit to third and Schade was trapped between third and home. He managed to get back to third, however, and in the meantime Sternard moved to second. Kelly then singled to left scoring Schade and Sternard moved to third to score later on a fly to left field.

Coated jumped back into the lead in the fourth when three runs were chased across the rubber but the lead was short-lived for the Post-Tuttles rattled back with four and took a 6 to 5 lead which they nursed through to the end of the game.

Smokey Williams worked for the Coated and fanned none and walked four. Stan Tesch performed for the P-T team and fanned eight and walked five. The winners got six hits and the losers five.

In the second game Coated scored a run in the first and things were quiet in the second and third. In the last of the fourth the Post-Tuttles registered four runs on a flock of walks and a double by Stan Tesch. With the Post-Tuttles still at bat, the game was called on account of darkness.

There will be an American Legion meeting at 8 o'clock Friday night at the Y. M. C. A.

Place Equipment In New Disposal Plant at Menasha

Expect Regular Operations
To Begin by Next Month

Menasha—Furnishings and equipment in the chemical laboratory at the new Twin City sewage treatment plant are being installed this week, walls are being painted, and the grounds around the 2-story building are being cleaned up.

George Sullivan, resident engineer, said today that the G. R. Fehr company of Milwaukee will start work next week on the sewage chambers which will be built near paper mills to measure discharge. It is planned to construct nine chambers.

Installation of chemical feed equipment, grading and levelling of the grounds, and minor details remain to be done before the plant will be completed. It is expected that the plant will be in operation by next month, but all the sewer lines in the Twin Cities will not be finished by then.

The Twin City sewage commission, which will hold a regular meeting tomorrow afternoon, this week will advertise for bids for more sewer projects in Menasha. The plans and specifications are being drawn up and the bids will be due by Friday, August 27.

Jess M. Holderby, new superintendent of the plant, returned to his home at Madison Tuesday night after several days' stay here. He attended a meeting of the commission last Friday and conferred with members regarding the appointment of a staff of men to assist him. It has been estimated that a force of 10 or 12 men will be required to run the plant.

The latest sewer project in Menasha is on Naynay street where workmen started excavations this week.

Pheasants Spoil Sweet Corn Crop

State Commission Orders
Some Birds be Eliminated

Neenah—Because pheasants in the vicinity of the state hospital near Oshkosh are destroying corn and other farm products, the state conservation commission has ordered that some of the birds be eliminated, according to Albert Dunham, county conservation warden.

A complaint was filed with the warden by a farmer who claimed that pheasants had destroyed several rows of sweet corn and other products. Unsuccessful attempts were made to trap the birds and to scare them away with scarecrows.

A drive last week, supervised by Warden Dunham, netted 15 pheasants and instructions have been issued by the state commission to trap a number of the birds next winter to prevent the depredation of farmers' crops in that locality.

Authorities have been forced to similar action in various parts of the state this year, the warden said.

Winnebago County 4-H Clubs Prepare For State Events

Work Is at Peak for 1937, Demonstration Agent Says

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau)

Oshkosh—Miss Helen Briggs, Winnebago county home demonstration agent stated today that the 4-H club work in Winnebago county was at its peak for 1937. She pointed out that with the state fair on the way, Winnebago county boys and girls are working at top speed to be ready for these events.

Wolf River Wonder Workers held their local fair Sunday, she said. Two local fairs will be held Aug. 16, one by the Lucky 13 club at the Adolph Saaby home and the other in the evening by the Stand-Up-and-Cheer club at the Roy C. Kittleson home. Meers 4-H local fair will be held Friday at the Meers school, and other clubs will also hold meetings.

Miss Briggs said that demonstrations and judging contests are two major activities of 4-H club work. An elimination contest is planned, she said, to select demonstration and judging teams for the state fair.

These will be held at the annual Winnebago county "round-up" at Winneconne High school, Tuesday, Aug. 17. The events will start at 9:30 in the morning and will include home economics demonstrations, home economics judging, agricultural demonstrations and judging in poultry, grain and dairy.

25 Demonstrations

Miss Briggs said it is planned this year to have 25 demonstrations in the contest, and to send the best three to the state fair. One judge will be sent for each 10 members, not to exceed seven in agriculture and four in home economics.

All demonstrators are asked to notify Miss Briggs Monday, Aug. 16, if they plan to enter the contest at Winneconne.

Many 4-H clubs in an effort to raise money for their clubs have been putting on ice cream socials, Miss Briggs said. Among them is the club of the Butte des Morts girls, led by Mrs. Harold Stovell. This club is saving so that each of the members may again attend 4-H club week in Madison, held in June.

Other clubs that have had ice cream socials include the B-Square club in the Town of Rushford, led by Henry Kirk; the Winning Wood Workers in the Town of Algoma, led by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wood, and the Double-Dozen club in the Town of Vinland, led by Louis Eckstein.

Public Exhibit

Miss Briggs said that each club member is required to make a public exhibit of his work in order to be eligible for achievement honors. She said that for this reason, county fairs provide the best opportunity. All 4-H clubs desiring a booth at the Winnebago county fair are asked to notify Miss Briggs not later than Aug. 20. Articles exhibited in the booths may be entered for individual competition.

Demonstrations and judging contests will also be held at the county fair on the first two days.

Entry lists should be at the county extension office not later than Aug. 27 and exhibits must be placed by Monday evening, Aug. 30.

Booths may be put up on Sunday Monday before the fair starts. Miss Briggs said.

The following clubs are expected to have one or more demonstrations at the County "round-up" Tuesday at Winneconne: Double Dozen club, Cheerie Chums, Allenville Girls, Wolf River Wonder Workers, Clairville Girls, Lucky 13, B-Square, Clover Cluster Girls, Stand Up and Cheer Girls, Waukau, Clover Cluster Boys, Starr, Lakeside, and Clayton Center.

Firemen Fight Smudge

In Waste Coop at Mill

Neenah—Neenah firemen bataled a smudge in a waste coop at the Hardwood Products company for about five hours last night before bringing it under control.

The smudge started when sawdust, used as fuel in the blast furnace, became overheated and ignited. Because the blaze was buried deep in the pile, firemen had difficulty in reaching it with water.

The department was called about 7:30 in the evening and worked until about 12:30. The blaze did not endanger the property as the sawdust is housed in a fireproof container.

Miss Kollath will act as assistant to Miss May Hart, librarian. She is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Kollath, Neenah, and will begin her duties at the library Sept. 1. Miss Boehm will wed Herbert Kruse, 216 W. Doty avenue, Neenah, Sept. 7.

It was estimated at this week's meeting that there will be about 700 feet of lots on either side of the new street which will be improved.

The committee was appointed to draw up the easements with the property owners in the two blocks affected.

Gates Advocates Stabilization of Jobs in Industry

Employment Service Manager Sees Waste in Importation of Workers

Neenah — "We believe that stabilization of industry and employment is a socially and economically desirable objective," Harry D. Gates, manager of the Neenah-Menasha office of Wisconsin State Employment Service, said today. "No contribution to the prosperity of the community is made by leaving local workers idle while outsiders are imported to do the work. The employment service is definitely interested in the stabilization of employment and in reducing large migrations of a floating population without ties of home, family, community and industry," the manager continued.

"Little is gained by calling a workman from another city and leaving one unemployed person in your own community to seek work on the WPA or on direct relief. There is a tremendous industrial waste and loss of time involved in trading jobs. The employment service does not want to be a party to such industrial waste."

"If the unemployed worker does not register there is no way of knowing that he is available for work and in that case attempts are made to get a man from another city. Employers must also cooperate so that the service office may know his needs," Gates stated.

"In the event that no local men are available who are qualified for a particular opening, the clearance system of the employment service is used. Other offices are contacted until the proper workman is found."

Copies of recent orders for workers sent from one office to others in the state show employers seeking 15 stone masons, 2 registered pharmacists, 10 sheet metal workers, 1 mechanical draftsman and a millwright. If no qualified workers are available in the state interstate contacts are made. Some of the orders show employers seeking 25 watch repairmen wanted in Michigan, 132 machine shop workers in Pennsylvania, an industrial chemist in Illinois and other high grade workers.

Workers Transferred

Every month, out of the average of six million applicants registered in several hundred employment offices located in every state of the union, about 7,000 to 20,000 workers are transferred from places where their services are not needed to jobs in other communities where they will be useful.

Speaking of the floating labor population, the manager stated, "A mobility of labor to meet the varying needs of industry is desirable. Beyond that point a great floating population without any ties of family, home, community or industry should be discouraged and reduced to a minimum. The employment clearance system helps to prevent large scale migrations" of workers blindly looking for a job.

The main objective of the local employment office is to increase the flexibility and mobility of labor within the community. Job analyses now are being made and job descriptions written for all important industries in the United States," Mr. Gates stated.

Study Job Factors

The manager explained that similarities of jobs in different industries and different jobs in the same industry are being studied in an attempt to learn of jobs to which a worker can be transferred from some other occupation with a minimum of readjustment. Many jobs in different industries are related and require about the same degree of education and experience, as well as knowledge of certain basically similar fundamental or technical processes.

"Cooperation between the employment service, employers and workers," said Mr. Gates, "will produce dividends to society in the form of greater economic stability, dividends to the employer in better workers more quickly available and dividends to the worker in a more suitable job with less delay."

Sportsmen's Licenses Available at Oshkosh

Neenah—Voluntary sportsmen's licenses are now available at Winnebago county game warden's offices at Oshkosh, it was announced today. The special license will give the holder combined rights and privileges for hunting, trapping, fishing and for deer hunting in the open season.

Regular fee for the license is $5 but additional space is provided in the blank so that conservationists may give larger contributions.

When the law permitting such contributions was recently enacted, a number of Wisconsin sportsmen paid as high as $100 for a license with the objective of aiding conservation department program.

Average at Neenah Beach Is 500 Daily

Jorgensen Reports Water Temperature at 78 Degrees

Neenah — Average daily attendance at the Neenah Municipal Bathing beach since Aug. 1 was 500 swimmers, according to Ole Jorgensen, superintendent.

Although the water has turned green from seeds and pollen, it is still clean and is considered satisfactory for swimming. Water temperatures average about 78 degrees.

Swimming at the beach was temporarily interrupted Tuesday when droves of grasshoppers, which apparently had started their flight from the east side of the lake, floated in to the west shore on the surface of the water.

No serious accidents or near-drownings were reported at the beach in the last week. However, the superintendent warned children against throwing sand and stones at each other while in swimming.

Dairy Cattle Judging Explained by Teacher

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—R. C. Heffernan, Winnebago county agent, reported that Professor George Humphrey of the state university was in Winnebago county Monday to give instructions to club members in dairy cattle judging. Schools were held at the farms of Louis Sorenson, Jess Moon, and Louis Beck. After explanations and demonstrations by Professor Humphrey, classes of dairy cattle were judged by the boys and girls. After placing of all classes, the boys were asked to give reasons for their placing.

He announced that shortly after Sept. 1, O. R. Zeasman, extension specialist in soils and agricultural engineering of the college of agriculture will come to Winnebago county to work on erosion control and pasture improvement. The county agent is now lining up several days of work for Zeasman.

Four requests already have been entered and he asks anyone interested in this work to contact him at his office in the postoffice at Oshkosh.

Friday evening, the county agent said, a meeting will be held in his office of club members, leaders, and parents interested in exhibiting club livestock at the state fair.

Attention was called by Heffernan to the horse pulling contest which is scheduled for the Winnebago county fair, Aug. 31, at 10:30 in the morning. For those interested in making entry, Heffernan stated that rules can be secured from his office.

Seek Solution of Housing Shortage in Twin Cities

Neenah — Acute shortage of homes in Neenah and Menasha has started real estate agents and would-be renters walking the floor as they try to think up a solution to the increasing demand for homes and the inability of finding a house in which to live.

The demand for homes to rent in the Twin Cities is twice as great as the supply according to Neenah and Menasha realtors who believe that one of the major causes for the shortage is advancement in lumber and labor costs which has tended to curtail possible building programs. A home that could be constructed a year ago for $3,000 would cost from $500 to $1,000 more this year according to reports.

Said one realtor, "another important cause for shortage is that renting houses is not a paying investment for the owner. It doesn't pay to buy or build a house to rent because the owner can get only a very small fee. People who rent

Gilberts to Meet Banta Team Friday

Industrial League Fans Wondering Who Can Beat Crack Marathon Squad

Menasha — Gilbert Paper company softballers will play Banta Publishing company on the Seventh street diamond and Mill Supply will meet the Woodenware at Jefferson park in two Industrial League games tomorrow night at 6 o'clock.

With only one week remaining in league competition, the question that confronts the city's softball fans is not who will win the title but what team, if any, is going to beat the Marathon Paper company.

The Marathon squad has swung merrily along all season, defeating all comers and stamping itself as the classiest team in the circuit. It now has a record of 13 straight victories and needs only to win one more, a tilt with Edgewater, to have a perfect season.

The Banta Publishing company team which will play Gilbert's tomorrow night is resting in second place in league standings with a record of nine victories and three defeats for a percentage of .750.

The Gilbert team is last in the 8-team league, winning only one game this season and losing 10.

Strange Paper company is third, with seven victories and five defeats, and the Woodenware fourth with six wins and five losses.

Dim Lights for Safety

We often have renters seeking a home at a certain rental figure because they claim they cannot afford more but in reality they cannot afford it because they plan to purchase a car or wish to have sufficient money to run their cars," said agents.

One agent decried the lack of child training in many families in the rental class, declaring that such lack in training was the basis for refusal of home owners to rent to families with children. The depreciation exceeds the rent derived when children mark up walls and woodwork and draw pictures with crayons, is the claim of home owners.

Conversion of large homes into duplexes or flats has helped to alleviate the shortage of "for rent" homes but only in a small measure. While agents report that neither Neenah or Menasha has ever had a surplus of homes for rent, the demand for places to rent at the present time is far in excess of the supply.

Benedicts, Bachelors Fight to Scoreless Tie; Dash for Eats

New London — There has been bad blood existing for some time between the married men and the single men at the Borden plant. They have fought many a battle during the summer at Athletic park but last night they decided to go to neutral grounds where arguments would not attract the attention of citizens and police. They stole stealthily out to the Alfred Wing farm south of the city where argument met argument in the wide open spaces. About 40 employees followed their team mates to the fray.

Ted Hole did some fine arm work for the hen-pecked men and took an early lead, but Leonard Dernbach improved after the second inning and the bachelors boys forged ahead. Feilenz, tall lanky backstop for the married men was beaten with a pitched ball which started an argument. Some said he should have ducked and he was banished for obstructing the game. When the arguments were cleared up it was found that the married men were ahead by one score. Then Denning came to bat in the last of the sixth and put a Homer over the cowshed to even up the score. By that time darkness began to fall on the secluded pasture, and then there was big rush for the cars for the boys had brought along a lot of eats, and things. Another game will be arranged at some future date.
